BUPRENORPHINE Training Course

Saturday, March 29, 2008

This is the last 2008 federally-approved buprenorphine training course in New York City. Buprenorphine is a newly FDA-approved medication, a partial agonist to the mu opioid receptor, which has revolutionized the treatment of patients who suffer from addiction to heroin and prescription opioid pills. Physicians who complete this official 8-hour course will be certified to prescribe buprenorphine for the treatment of opioid addiction from their own offices.

Dr. Andrew Kolodny from Maimonides Medical Center, Dr. Edwin A. Salsitz from Beth Israel Medical Center, and our very own Dr. Petros Levounis from the Addiction Institute will be teaching the course, which includes lectures, small group discussions, case studies, and movies. The course is open to all health care providers.

FREE for Everyone!
